ABOUT KINDERTON COUNTRY CLUB

Located in Clarksville, VA beside Kerr Lake, Kinderton Country Club is a semi-private country club featuring a golfing masterpiece. In 1947 Donald Ross was commissioned to design a golf course on the outskirts of Clarksville, Virginia. Ross designed an 18-hole layout but only the front nine was initially constructed. Later in the 1950's Dick Wilson designed and built the back nine holes. He also relocated the tee on hole #1 and the green on hole #5. Originally the greens were planted in common Bermuda grass. In 2011 the greens were replanted with MiniVerde, Ultradwarf Bermuda grass at which time an automated irrigation was installed. In the early 60's the swimming pool was built and in the late 60's the tennis courts were added to complete the club which is now called Kinderton Country Club.

Kinderton's front nine remains a true Donald Ross design with crowned, sloped greens. Jack Nicklaus said "Donald Ross' stamp as an architect was naturalness". "Conversely, Dick Wilson's design features bunkers and water." Together these two designers created a golfing gem that is challenging yet fun.
